A Veteran’s Homegoing

James Jackson Henderson was born August 27th, 1827 in Irwin County, Georgia, which at that time was in Sycamore, Georgia, later North County in 1853, and finally Turner County in 1905. He could say he had lived in all three counties and never moved. He was married to Miss Susannah Whiddon, September 19th, 1850, and he died May 28th, 1910. At the time of his death, he was eighty-two years, nine months, and one day old. He and his devoted wife have lived happily together for fifty-nine years, eight months, and nine days. From this union there was born five daughters and three sons; all the daughter surviving him, while two of his sons preceded him in death, leaving an only son now in life, the Hon. J.W. Henderson.

Captain Henderson was one if not the oldest citizens of Turner county, and it was for him that the county was first to have been named but he being alive, the Legislature would not name any county for a man who was still in life. He was one of the pioneer citizens of this section of the state. He did as much in the early eighties and nineties as any man in South Georgia to induce settlers from middle and North Georgia to settle in this section of the state. He was the son of a Methodist preacher, and at no great distance in the past, he was called upon to officiate at the grave, he having connected himself with this branch of the church in early life, and ministers being far between in this section of Georgia at that time. And be it said of him, that his home was a shelter for the weary and at all time. No man was ever turned away hungry and unscholetr, never turning a deaf ear to the importunities of his less unfortunate brethren. He loved the children of Sycamore Methodist church and he would grow his own strawberries and after coating them with chocolate, he would serve them at their youth meetings.

He was a founder of the beautiful little city of Sycamore in this county. He was an Ex-Confederate soldier and a member of camp Bartow Confederate Veterans of this county. He volunteered in Company "A", 61st Georgia Regiment in 1861 from Irwin County, was captured at Ft. Pulaski in the early part of the war and was sent to Ft. Delaware Federal prison, being afterwards exchanged. He was a part of that group we now call the "Immortal 600" composed of 600 captured officers that the Yankees used as human shields, placing them in front of Yankee forts to receive the firings of Confederate cannons. Ft. Delaware was the North's answer to Andersonville, Georgia. 3,000 of 12,000 Confederate men died there.

Afterwards, he returned to his company and was honorably discharged at Ft. Donelson at the close of the war in 1865 as Captain of his company. He was painfully wounded at Petersburg, Virginia, being shot in the mouth with a Minnie ball during the memorable siege of that stronghold. At another time, he was temporarily blinded by the blast of gunfire.

He was a true to the cause of the South as any man that wore the gray. He loved the stars and bars as only the true and brave could. He loved that flag when it went down in glorious defeat at Appomattox, as he did when it wavered in triumph and victory at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and the Wilderness. He was present at the Battle of Gettysburg, Virginia. He never tired of telling to both old and young of the glory of the old South and of his love for her cause and people. But alas, like the majority of that once invincible army of the purest and noblest men that ever mustered around any banner, he has answered the last call of that Great Captain of his salvation, fought the last fight, and came out more than a conqueror. Is he dead? No, he only sleepeth.

Asleep in Jesus, Oh how sweet to be for such a slumber meet; With holy confidence to sing, The death has lost his venom'd sting.

Brothers,

Another year has come and gone. We continue to battle against the enemies of the South. They don’t like our Flag, they don’t like our ancestors, (and probably don’t know theirs). Because of the propaganda version taught in our schools, they despise what the brave men of the South fought for, and in general, they think that our stand for the Southern Troops is based on an incorrect theory although we know the truth, FACTS no longer matter! A phrase recently came to mind that would empower our ancestors to secede from the second paragraph of the Declaration of Independence:

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. -- That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, -- That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.”

One can only wonder which part of this was not understood by the Lincoln government. The very Declaration which founded the United States said we, The South, were within our rights to establish a new Government. Have you ever wondered why President Davis was never brought to trial? Could it be that they realized, after the fact, that we, the South, had every right to secede and form a new government? This right was written in the formation of our country. (And the reference to all men being created equal refers to the ruling class of royalty our ancestors came to this country to escape) and we still celebrate this document every 4th of July! Enough for our history lesson today. Just thought it may help some of you when in a disagreement with a yankee.

By the time you receive this, we should have had the Reunion and elections are behind us and we are ready to move forward for the next couple of years. We still hold the distinction of being the largest group within the Confederation, with over 3,500 members! This is nowhere near enough but we continue to grow, even in the face of those who have no concept of what we are about, and unless we inform them they will never know. So, the thought for the day: Find a dis-believer and show them just who we are and what we are about. They might be one of us, and just need to be informed.

Hope you made it to the Reunion, and had a good productive time, your vote counts.

Live the Charge.

NEW CADET PROGRAM

It is truly an exciting time in the history of the Georgia Division as we work to build our future leaders through membership in a totally new Cadet program. Beginning on November 1, 2015, we will roll out phase one of Georgia’s Cadet Membership program. From day one, members of the Cadet program will not only get a newly designed membership pin denoting them as a Cadet member, but also a membership certificate, camouflage SCV cap, and a subscription to the Georgia Confederate newsletter.

Membership in the Cadet program is $20 per year, or a one-time $100 payment to cover all years up to age twelve. Cadets who join at the $100 one-time level will also receive a "Legacy" pin, noting their membership at the Legacy level.

Cadet Membership Benefits:

➤ Subscription to The Georgia Confederate, a bi-monthly newsletter to members of the Georgia Division
➤ A camouflage baseball cap with SCV logo
➤ A special "Cadet Member" pin - only available to Cadet members of the Georgia Division
➤ A "Cadet Member" certificate from the Georgia Division
➤ Participation in our Georgia Division’s Cadet program with the ability to earn more pins as you complete new tasks
➤ The opportunity to attend and participate in your local SCV Camp meetings
➤ The opportunity to meet other Cadets in your area and participate in "Cadet only" outdoor activities like camping, fishing, and participating in local heritage events

History of the Georgia Division, Sons of Confederate Veterans
Mark Pollard, Georgia Division Historian

Part (2) - History of the Georgia Division: 1907-1910

The years 1907 & 1908 were both quite uneventful for the Sons. An article shown in the Confederate Veteran magazine in 1907 from a Veteran in New York cited the Sons for such little activity asking if they were aware of the sacrifices of their fathers. In fact, not much is shown in that publication due to the inability of CIC Thomas Owens to fully carry out his regular duties. An article appearing in the summer of 1907 from an assistant to CIC Owens, explains that the CIC was not able to be active as he had wanted because as Director of the Alabama Department of Archives and History he had been very busy with his Department's move from one location to another and he regretted that he would be unable to run for CIC the following year.

It seems that this was the reason for the lack of information published concerning the Sons. There may have actually been a lot of local activity, but the CIC could not publish it. That was the case in Atlanta.

In 1907 a big event happened in Atlanta. On May 25, the fine equestrian statue of General John B. Gordon was unveiled at a large ceremony on the State Capital grounds. The artist, Solon Borglum, had done one of his greatest masterpieces. Borglum said these words about Gordon; “General John B. Gordon would become one of the most successful commanders in General Robert E. Lee’s Army, and would do so without any prior military training. General Gordon would wind up being one of the most wounded officers that served on either side of the war. Not only that, he would receive five of those wounds in one battle.” No critic had a bad word for Borglum's work. On the large marble base of the monument, there is a bronze relief depicting that famous moment when Gordon grabbed the reins of General Robert E. Lee's horse and shouted; “Lee to the rear”, which set off a group chant of the same. Surely this is one of the South’s best Confederate Monuments.

Several thousand people gathered for the unveiling. From photographs taken, only about 30 Sons have been identified. There has been not been much success in finding the identities of the 100 or so Confederate Veterans present for the unveiling. The 30 or so identified Sons of Confederate Veterans thus far comprise quite a special group of Sons.

One of the Sons present was Huge Dorsey. He was a member of the Atlanta John B. Gordon SCV Camp and the first of that Camp to be elected Governor of Georgia. He would be one of seven future Georgia Governors that became members of that Camp!

It was a beautiful May Day for the unveiling. Gordon's family members were seated closest to the monument and behind them were seated the Confederate Veterans. As the ceremony started, the sounds of birds could be heard chirping from the nearby stately oak trees on the Capital grounds. The sweet singing of the birds silenced out the sounds of an occasional automobile heard pattering off in the distance.

During the ceremony, Julia L. Spalding sang a song she had written just for this occasion, which was well known in Sunbelt circles: "The Sunny South". A soft breeze arrived just in time that helped General John B. Gordon's daughter as she unveiled the monument dedicated to her father. The unveiling was met with loud cheers which instantly rang out from the Veterans themselves and all others present.

All compatriots today should go often to visit General Gordon's monument on the Capital grounds and to Oakland Cemetery where he is buried. Oakland Cemetery is located about a mile east of the State Capital.

With the anthem "Dixie" playing and frequent interruptions of spirit emanating from the crowd and the eerie shriek of the old Rebels in alternating rhythms, it would be a powerful event. When the "boys" were still alive, it was true magic at a parade. They could give a glimpse of the thrill as Mary Gay spoke about in her book, "Life in Dixie," at the sight and sound of Wheeler's cavalry riding through Decatur, shrieking in the night; a sound of comfort to the faithful!

For the SCV in general, and to their everlasting credit, an important stand was taken at the executive council meeting in 1909 by outgoing CIC Dr. Thomas Owen, by incoming CIC Dr. Clarence Owens and by Judge R.B. Houghton among others. These "Alabama boys" had to wrestle with an issue that we might think small, but to these aging Sons, it pulled at the organization strongly.

Several issues were decided at this particular meeting and it appears that UCV CIC General Clement Evans of Atlanta, (who succeeded John B. Gordon) played no small part in influencing events.

The first item to be decided was a "new and permanent" headquarters to be located in Memphis, Tennessee. City Councilman, Nathan Bedford Forrest Jr. offered enough influence to result in a sec-

A statue of John B. Gordon in uniform aboard his horse Marye. Erected on the northwestern corner of the Georgia State Capital square.

It has not been possible to find specific information concerning the activities of the Sons at the unveiling; however the Veterans themselves were much more thoroughly covered.

The years 1909-1910 produced a small amount of local activity and only a few national events. As mentioned, CIC Thomas Owen had not been available for much activity.

In Atlanta, the Atlanta Chapter UDC had sponsored a fundraising drive that all local compatriots participated in. They raised sufficient funds to donate a new piano to the Soldiers Home during patriotic ceremonies.

The real fun was on Confederate Memorial Day, 1909, when a detailed description of events appeared in the Confederate Veteran. This rare article says that all business was stopped and there was a solid mass of people in the streets. The parade first included dignitaries and local officials.

They were followed by the SCV, UDC and DAR among other patriotic organizations. They and the military bands pushed a path through the crowd for the special guests; the Veterans. By the time they came by, bearded and in uniform, the crowd grew excited. As they passed by, they halted every few steps to give out a rousing Rebel Yell that would echo through the streets of Atlanta. This would bring a thunderous response from the crowd. It gives me pause to consider what this parade would have sounded like a block or two away.

The Georgia Confederate
The Jefferson Davis ‘Memorial Day’ Funeral Train

By Calvin E. Johnson, Jr.

June 3rd is the 208th birthday of Jefferson Davis who served in the United States House and Senate, 23rd United States Secretary of War and President of the Confederate States of America.

If you listen closely, and the wind blows the right direction, you may hear a train whistle in the distance. As a youngster near Atlanta, this and the sound of "taps" from nearby Fort McPherson were special sounds. Today, air conditioners and closed windows segregate the sounds of trains, owls and all the wonderful sounds of the symphony of the night. We do not hear our community's soul; we hear only its machines.

On Sunday, May 28, 1893, a few days before "Memorial Day", in New Orleans, a story began that overshadowed all other events.

This was the day when the remains of Jefferson Davis, former president of the Confederate States of America, were taken to Richmond, Virginia for final burial. Jefferson Davis died in 1889 and over 200,000 people witnessed his temporary burial at Metairie Cemetery in New Orleans. Four years later on a rainy Saturday, on May 27, 1893, the remains of Jefferson Davis were removed and taken to Confederate Memorial Hall in New Orleans.

At 4:30PM, May 28th, a funeral service was held for Mr. Davis and a moving memorial address was delivered by Louisiana's Governor Murphy J. Foster as thousands listened. A reverent silence fell among the people as the casket was given to the commitment of veterans from Virginia.

The procession then formed for a slow march to the railroad station on Canal Street.

Train No. 69, with Engineer Frank Coffin, waited patiently as the casket was taken to the platform and passed through an open observation car to a catafalque.

Train engine No. 69, of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad slowly pulled out of New Orleans Station at 7:50PM for the 1,200 mile trip.

After a brief stop at Bay Saint Louis, and a slow-down at Pass Christian, where hundreds of people lined the tracks, the Jefferson Davis Funeral Train stopped at Gulfport, Mississippi, near Beauvoir the Southern President's last home.

Uncle Bob Brown, a former servant of the Davis family and a passenger on the train, saw the many flowers that the children had laid on the side of the railroad tracks. Brown was so moved by this beautiful gesture that he wept uncontrollably.

In Mobile, Alabama, the train was met by a thousand mourners and the Alabama Artillery fired a 21-gun salute. Locomotive No. 69 was retired and Locomotive No. 25 was coupled to the train. The new train's Engineer was C.C. Deviney and Warren Robinson was its fireman.

The Atlanta Journal reported, “The Cradle of the Confederacy is ablaze with life and light tonight. Everything is ready for honoring the memory of Jefferson Davis. Tomorrow morning with the rising of the sun the funeral train from New Orleans will reach Montgomery.”

Church bells rang in Montgomery, Alabama when the train pulled into the city at 6:00AM on May 29th. A severe rainstorm delayed the funeral procession to about 8:30AM when a caisson carried the body of Davis to Alabama's state Capitol. A procession carried the casket through the portico where Jefferson Davis, in 1861, had taken the oath of office as President of the Confederacy.

The casket was placed in front of the bench of the Alabama Supreme Court. Above the right exit was a banner with the words “Monterrey” and above the left exit was a banner with the words “Buena Vista.”

During the War with Mexico Jefferson Davis was a hero at Monterey and wounded at Buena Vista.

At 12:20PM the funeral train departed over the Western Railway of Alabama and Atlanta and West Point Railroad for Atlanta.

At 4:30PM the funeral train pulled into Union Station in Atlanta, Georgia. It is estimated that 20,000 people lined the streets as the funeral procession made their way to the state capitol. When Davis’ body lay in state at the Capitol, it was guarded by Atlanta's Gate City Guard which had served as Company F, 1st Georgia (Ramsay's).

At 7:00PM the train went north on the Richmond and Danville Railroad. The train traveled through Lula, Georgia, Greenville, South Carolina and stopped at the North Carolina capitol at Raleigh.

A brief stop was made in Danville, Virginia where a crowd of people gathered around the train and sang, "Nearer My God to Thee" as city church bells tolled.

Finally, the train reached Richmond, Virginia on Wednesday, May 31, 1893, at 3:00AM. It was Memorial Day. The casket was taken to the Virginia State House.

At 3:00PM, May 31st, the funeral procession started for Hollywood Cemetery.

With Mrs. Jefferson Davis were her daughters, Winnie and Margaret. Six state governors acted as pallbearers. It was estimated that 75,000 people attended this final salute to President Davis. The ceremony concluded with a 21-gun salute and "Taps."

Marl Pollard
Georgia Division Historian
Chaplain's Column

As I am writing this, today is May 30, 2016. A day set aside by the Federal government to remember those who died defending our Country. Last month we remembered those noble men who wore the gray. Today we recognize the gray and all military who gave the ultimate price.

Many throughout the South have been deceived regarding their honorable Confederate forefathers and instead of desiring to honor them they either ignore or reject their good name and the cause of freedom for which they suffered so intensely. Children today are being taught to be ashamed of their Confederate ancestry, and it’s up to you and me to teach what the history books and classrooms are perverting.

To not honor our Confederate forefathers is to disobey the 5th Commandment: “Honor your father and your mother, so that you may live long in the land the LORD your God is giving you.” Exodus 20:12.

June 1st is also a day of remembrance set aside by the Georgi a Division to honor Little Mary Phagan. If Little Mary was important enough to be honored by the men who wore gray, she’s important enough to me.

For those who may not be familiar with the story of Little Mary Phagan, I will give a brief description why June 1st was set aside in 2013 to be remembered annually.

On Confederate Memorial Day, April 26, 1913, the United Confederate Veterans were going to parade downtown Atlanta. Thirteen year old Mary Phagan was excited at the chance to see those old men of gray march through the streets. My, what a sight it must have been to see these real fighting men give the Rebel yell as they paraded through town. It was a time when “political correctness” hadn’t gripped the country and people were proud of their lineage. Families packed picnic lunches, stores closed for the day and soldiers of every color and every social status arrived any way they could to attend the celebration.

Little Mary Phagan was born June 1, 1899, four months after the death of her father. Mary had to leave school at the age of ten to work and help support her family, as many children had to do during those days. Reconstruction did nothing for the poor people after the War but made them poorer. There were no child labor laws and kids had to become adults fast to survive. Mary was considered a very pretty young girl and she eventually went to work at the National Pencil Factory on South Forsyth Street in Atlanta. The manager of the factory was a young Jewish American named Leo Frank, nephew of the company’s owner Moses Frank.

What happened that day on April 26, 1913, Confederate Memorial Day, was one of the most horrific murders in the state of Georgia. Mary never made it to the parade. According to friends, Mary had gotten on the English Street streetcar and got off at the National Pencil Factory to collect the $1.20 owed her since being laid off from the factory a few days earlier. This would be the last time Mary Phagan would be seen alive.

At 4 am on Sunday, April 27, night watchman Newt Lee, an African American, reached the factory cellar during his rounds. There he found the body of young Mary Phagan lying on a pile of cinders near the furnace. A piece of cloth had been torn from her skirt and tied about her face. Her dress was up around her knees, her eyes were blackened from being beaten and she had several cuts and abrasions on her body. Tightly drawn around her neck was a seven foot strip of ¼ inch wrapping cord. Blood had exited her mouth and her ears and her tongue protruded 1 ½ inches out of her mouth. She had been beaten severely, strangled and raped.

Originally, Lee was arrested but released. Leo Frank denied even knowing the girl. Friends would later speak out that Mary had told them in the past how Frank would try to corner her and make advances, to which she would reject. Every implication pointed to Leo Frank as the guilty party and records would prove he was indeed at the factory that day.

Frank was sent to the Georgia Work Farm Prison in Milledgeville, where he was a hated man. Having retired from the Department of Corrections, I can assure you that to this day, child molesters and kid killers are the bottom of the rung. At midnight of August 16, a group of about twenty-five men who called themselves the “Knights of Mary Phagan” raided the prison and removed Frank without any resistance from prison staff. They drove him 150 miles to Frey’s Mill, present day Roswell Road at I-75, near Phagan’s home in Marietta, and hanged him.

The United Confederate Veterans and the Masons raised money for Little Mary Phagan’s burial and her body was laid to rest at the top of the hill at Marietta City Cemetery. She lies in the S. E. corner where Cemetery St. and W. Atlanta St. intersect. Confederate veterans are buried to her right and many of the Masons are buried to her left as if they are watching over her. Over 3,000 unknown Confederate soldiers are in the Confederate Cemetery. I visit her grave and the soldier’s graves whenever I happen to be traveling that way.

Confederate veterans were in the process of placing the tombstone on little Mary’s grave in June of 1915 when Governor John Marshall Slaton cowardly gave in to the threats from Jewish leaders from the north and commuted the sentence of Leo Frank. Today, in Marietta Cemetery, you can find Little Mary Phagan’s grave with the inscription:

“In this day of fading ideals, little Mary Phagan’s heroism is an heirloom, that which there is nothing more precious among the red hills of Georgia. Sleep, little girl; sleep in your humble grave but if the angels are good to you in the realms beyond the trouble sunset and the clouded stars, they will let you know that many an aching heart in Georgia beats for you, and many a tear, from eyes unused to weep, has paid you a tribute too sacred for words.”

Countless articles, books, plays, and recordings were made over the years, mostly funded from the north to portray the evil South and how an [innocent] man was hanged. I spent a year researching and collecting information concerning the case, the trial, conviction and hanging of Leo Frank. My conclusion, as that of the Phagan family, is Leo Frank was guilty of this heinous crime. I wrote the story as I viewed it and several years ago it was printed in the Georgia Confederate. If anyone is interested in the complete story, email me and I will be more than happy to forward it to you. As I close, I’d like to quote 1 Thessalonians 4:13, 14, “Sorrow not, even as others that have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.”

May God give you health and happiness through the days ahead. I hope to see you in Conyers.

Union League Terrorism During The Occupation
By Mike Scruggs

Union League meetings were conducted as a mystical secret society with secret rituals. Meetings were especially devoted to stirring up enmity between blacks and whites.

A catechism written by Radical Republicans in Congress was used in Union League meetings to create an unreasonable sense of entitlement, grievance, and resentments. They were taught that Northern Republican whites were their friends, northern Republican whites were their friends and allies and that White Southerners and Democrats were enemies to be hated and despised. They were frequently promised that they would receive land and livestock confiscated from the Whites. In some cases they were even promised racial dominance that would entitle them to the wives and daughters of their White enemies. This led to a number of violent racial incidents. Such racial incidents were frequently used by carpetbagger governments to demonstrate to Washington and the North that the South was not ready to be ruled by the same people who were ruling them. Union League meetings were conducted as a mystical secret society with secret rituals. Meetings were especially devoted to stirring up enmity between blacks and whites.

Arkansas. Men, women, and children were killed in raids on "insurrectionary" communities and counties. Their deaths were reported as "killed trying to escape." There were Union League barn burnings and other destruction in every North Carolina County. During a single week of 1869 in Gaston County, North Carolina, nine barns were burned. In two months of the same year in Edgecombe County, two churches, several cotton gins, a cotton factory, and many barns and homes were burned. The Raleigh Sentinel reported on August 29th of the same year that ten Federal Army companies associated with the Union League had terrorized the Goldsboro area and committed violent depredations of all sorts. It reported the actions of the troops "so violent that it was unsafe for women to leave their homes." This was all part of the Reconstruction mandate to remake the South.

In Myrta Lockett Avary's 1906 book, Dixie After the War, she relates a tragic, but not untypical atrocity. In Upstate South Carolina a group of Union League federal soldiers marching and singing hailed to discharge a volley of bullets into a country church during services, instantly killing a fourteen year old girl. At a nearby residence a squad of the same troops entered a home and bound the elderly owner as they ransacked his house and argued over who would ravage his daughter. The girl when approached drove a concealed knife through the heart her assailant. She was then beaten to death by the rest. But under corrupt military and carpetbagger rule, Southern whites had little recourse to justice. No federal justice occurred.

By 1870 the corruption of the carpetbagger governments and the violence of the Union League was becoming a concern to a significant minority in the U.S. Congress. As Klan activity increased in response to Union League and other Reconstruction misdeeds, the Radical Republicans formed a committee to investigate the Klan. A minority report by Northern Democrats and Conservative Republicans representing more than a third of the committee, however, noted that the Union League had "instilled hatred of the White race" and had "made arson, rape, robbery, and murder a daily occurrence." They also noted the role of corrupt government and Union League violence in driving whites to take law into their own hands.

A very stringent anti-Klan law was passed by the North Carolina legislature under the direction of Governor William W. Holden in January of 1870. True to past Radical Republican despotism, it gave the Governor power to declare counties in a state of insurrection and supersede practically all laws and Constitutional rights in its prosecution. Despite a vigorous attempt to enforce the law, Klan-like activity increased and a top Black activist and leader of the League in Alamance County was found hanging in a tree. Shortly thereafter, Senator John Stephens, a ranking White operative for Governor Holden, seeking evidence for Klan prosecutions, visited a Caswell County Union League meeting.

There he handed to each of about twenty members a box of matches with the suggestion that they should be put to good use burning barns. The next night seven barns, a row of houses, and the tobacco crops of several prominent citizens were burned.

A few days later Senator Stephens attended a rally at the Vanceville Courthouse for the purpose of making notes on the speeches. He was quietly abducted, gagged, and brutally murdered in one of the Courthouse rooms with an open window to the crowd outside. His body was not discovered until two days later. It was not proven until 1936 that it was a well organized assassination by the KKK. The gruesome mystery and death of Stephens prompted Governor Holden and his advisors to launch a military campaign against the KKK in June. They hoped this would also be a political positive in the coming August elections.

Holden called upon Black Union League militia regiments in eastern North Carolina and the White veterans of Union Colonel George W. Kirk's notorious bushwhackers from the mountains to score a decisive victory. Kirk was to be in charge. Kirk was a Confederate deserter that had been made a colonel in the Union Army during the War. During the war Kirk had commanded a combined force of Union Army regulars, Confederate deserters, and opportunistic criminals. A good size book could be written on the depredations and atrocities Kirk and his men inflicted on civilians in western North Carolina during the war. According to a report by a Union officer stationed in Vanceville, Kirk lived up to his evil reputation in the service of Governor Holden. Kirk's troops were "an armed mob roaming the country, pillaging at will, insulting citizens with impunity, and even threatening to attack the United States troops." Many KKK suspects were arrested and imprisoned.

But on August 4 of 1870 the elections in North Carolina took place. Despite their despotic tactics, the Republicans were very nearly routed. More than two-thirds of the legislative seats went to the Democrats. A growing number of Whites had been able to register, and many Blacks and even Union Army men had found the carpetbagger corruption and tyranny so despicable that they voted for the Democrats. On August 6, U. S. District Court Judge George Brooks found that Kirk had no evidence against any of his prisoners and ordered their release.

Thus ended the "Kirk-Holden" War. Kirk fled north, and within a few months Governor Holden was impeached by the North Carolina House for abuse of power, tried by the Senate and removed from office. Within a year the Union League in North Carolina was disbanded and disappeared.

Former Confederate General John B. Gordon testified in 1871 to the Joint Congressional Committee on Affairs in the Insurrectionary States that: "The first and main reason for the KKK was the organization of the Union League."

Gordon, who later became Governor of Georgia and then a U. S. Senator, also stated that even the burning of Atlanta and the devastation of Georgia in the war did not create a tenth of the animosity created by the Union League's treatment of the Southern people. Former Confederate General Nathan B. Forrest, a reputed founder of the Klan, testified before the same committee that: "The Klan was intended entirely as a protection to the (Southern) people, to enforce the laws and protect the people from outrages."

Both men realized, however, that after a few years, the Klan, formed in a people's desperate cry for survival and justice, had itself become a lawless outrage. But it was the federally sponsored Union League that ranked first in time and violence. It should not be forgotten. The evils it inflicted on both Black and White still lives.

Liberty Hall Academy
in Lexington, Virginia, was the recipient in 1796 of James River canal stock gift from General George Washington – and the grateful school trustees changed the name to Washington College in 1813. Almost immediately after Robert E. Lee’s death in 1870, the school became known as “Washington and Lee College.” Northern soldiers desec rated the college named for Washington in 1864, smashing windows and scribbling obscenities on the walls.

Washington College Was Not Spared

“But no one could hide the scars of the recent struggle. “The whole country from the Blue Ridge to the North Mountain has been made untenable for a rebel army,”’ Sheridan had informed Washington. If a crow wanted to fly across the area, he would have to carry rations. Trees were down. Fields were gutted. Fences, mills, barns, bridges, crops and stock had been destroyed. Instead of wheat, corn, and barley, the fields were overrun with briars, nettles and weeds.

The fields could be improved in a season; the people’s tempers and bitterness not for generations. Sectional antagonism went back far before the war. “We do not set any claims to public spirit in the matter of internal improvement,” a Rockbridge County historian admitted as early as 1852, “and are shamefully content to let all the glory that appertains there go to the go-ahead Yankees.” When the Yankees laid waste to the Shenandoah Valley, Virginians turned from sarcasm to denunciation.

People did not quickly forget the fate of towns like Scottsville, where every shop, mill and store was burned. Canal locks were dismantled. Records and books were wantonly scattered. The little town lay in its blackened pall, a returning soldier wrote “like a mourner hopelessly weeping.” If the small towns were bad, the cities were worse.

The closest major city to Lexington was Lynchburg, a transportation and manufacturing center fifty-four miles to the southeast. In 1865, life there was paralyzed. Stores were vacant. The tobacco business was ruined. Property everywhere declined in value. The occupying soldiers were a rowdy, rough and drunken set. Robberies occurred nightly.

Sixteen months before General Lee came to Lexington alone, [Northern] General David Hunter had come – with an army. His orders were to . . . destroy all supplies and burn all houses within five miles of the spot where resistance occurred . . . on June 6, 1864, Hunter took Staunton and headed for Lexington . . . crossed the bridge and burned the Virginia Military Institute, and looted the area.

Annie Broun echoed the native’s reaction in the helpless undefended town: “Can I say “God forgive him?” Were it possible for human lips to raise his name heavenward, angels would thrust the foul thing down again. The curses of thousands will follow him through all time, and brand upon the name Hunter infamy, infamy.”

Atop the bluff near the river stood the charred and blackened ruins of the “West Point of the South” – Virginia Military Institute. Along the streets were piles of rubble and brick. At the edge of town stood Washington College, desecrated and silent. Planks were nailed over smashed windows. Obscenities were scribbled on the walls.” (Lee After the War, Marshall W. Fishwick, Dodd, Mead & Company, 1963, pp. 67-77)

Habersham Guard Camp 716, Clarkesville, Ga recently joined forces with the 27th Georgia Regiment and Color Guard Camp 1404 Gainesville, Ga, the UDC Habersham Chapter 1237, and Whitfield Funeral Home in a Memorial Service and Confederate Marker Dedication honoring the memory of 2nd Lt. Frederick E. Durbec. While serving honorably in the 25th S.C. Vol. Infantry it is his profession as a photographer that makes him truly special. Durbec and his partner documented plantation life in South Carolina prior to the war and provided some of the only photographs of Fort Sumter after the Confederate bombardment. These photographs are housed in the Library of Congress. After moving to Clarkesville, Ga in 1890, he died in 1894 and is buried in the Old Clarkesville Cemetery.

ELMIRA CIVIL WAR PRISON CAMP AND GEORGIA MARBLE

The Elmira Prison Camp, Elmira, New York, also known as “Hellmira”, only operated for 370 day from July 6, 1864 to July 11, 1865. Built originally on 20 acres of land for 5,000 prisoners “with crowding” expanded to approximately 30 acres of land and incarcerated 12,121 Confederate soldiers. Over 2,970 Confederate soldiers died in Elmira Prison, a 24.5% death rate. There were not enough wooden buildings to house the prisons and many hundreds were housed in tents during the harsh New York winter. The Elmira Prison had the highest death rate of any other Union Army prison camp.

All eleven Confederate States plus Missouri had soldiers to die in Elmira. North Carolina had the highest number of deaths at 1,228 (41.3%), Virginia was second with 576 (19.4%), South Carolina was third with 397 (13.3%), Georgia was fourth with 382 (12.9%), Alabama with 241, Tennessee with 82, Louisiana with 69, Florida with 48, Texas with 17, Mississippi with 10, Arkansas with 12, and Missouri with 1.

The average day in the Elmira Prison ended with the deaths of 8 men either from dysentery, malnutrition, pneumonia, small pox, or from the results of frostbite. Approximately one and one half miles north of the prison camp a cemetery for the camp dead was established on a piece of property next to the Woodlawn Cemetery. At that time grave markers were made of wood and accurate burial records were maintained by a former runaway slave John Jones. In 1877 this Confederate Cemetery became Woodlawn National Cemetery. Wooden markers were still present with the exception of eight headstones which had been placed there by family members.

On June 11, 1906, Grave Commissioner William Elliot arrived in Elmira and went to the Woodlawn National Cemetery and was delighted to see the grounds maintained well. However, there were problems, the wooden markers were in disrepair and need replacing. In June 1907, the federal government awarded the Blue Ridge Marble Company of Nelson, Georgia, a contract to furnish 2,932 marble headstones. The contract was for $8,502.80, $2.90 for each headstone to measured 39-by-12-by-4-inches. Each headstone weighed approximately two hundred pounds, and Elmira was to receive three hundred weekly until all were delivered to the Northern Central Railroad depot in Elmira.

From the railroad depot, the headstones needed to be taken to the cemetery and set 20 inches above the ground. After some negotiating, Charles E. Rainey, owner of City Granite and Marble Works was contracted 25 cents each, which totaled $733 for the job. On October 2, 1907, a contract was drawn stating “that the said Charles E. Rainey will set up in the Confederate Section of Woodlawn National Cemetery 2932, more or less, marble headstones”.

Today, the Confederate Section of the Woodlawn National Cemetery, Elmira, New York is a most beautiful place, which is fitting for the final resting place of so many Confederate Soldiers. It is also fitting that these men lie buried under marble headstones which came from the South, Nelson, Georgia, located in the southern foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains in North Georgia.

Special Note: The Blue Ridge Marble Company of Nelson, Georgia is still in business in 2016.

Confederate “Fighting Irish” at Elmira

There were many Confederate infantry companies formed at the beginning of the war and designated “Irish”. As an example, in the city of Charleston, South Carolina there were two Irish companies, Co C “Irish Volunteers”, later Co H “Irish Volunteers”, 27th SC Infantry, and Co K, 1st SC Infantry. The 27th was especially claimed by Charlestonians as their regiment. The average intelligence and social position of the rank and file were thus greater than most regiments. There is one known Charleston “Irish Volunteer” of the 27th SC buried in Elmira. He is Pvt. John Flynn from Charleston. Pvt. Flynn enlisted 15 Mar 1862 in Charleston. He was captured 24 Jun 1864 near Petersburg, sent to Point Lookout and transferred to Elmira on 25 July 1864. He died of disease 15 Aug 1864 and is buried in Plot # 20. Most every Confederate state had several “Irish” companies. However, there were only two Irish Regiments in the Army of the Confederacy.

One regiment was formed in Tennessee and the other in Georgia. The Tennessee Irish Regiment was the 10th Tennessee Volunteer Infantry Regiment formed in Nashville in April, 1861. The 10th Tennessee was also known as the “Bloody 10th” for the heavy losses the regiment sustained in the Battle of Fr. Donaldson which was located along the Tennessee – Kentucky border. Of the original members of the 10th, only four were still fighting in 1865 when the war ended. The 10th was noted for their flag “Sons of Erin”.

The more famous and most recognized Confederate Irish Regiment is the 24th Georgia “Irish Regiment” among other regiments. This was a suicide attack ordered by Gen. Burnside. The New York “The Fighting 69th” Irish Regiment attacked up the heights against the 24th Georgia. The result of the Irish against Irish fight was devastating for the 69th New York. Of the 1,200 New York Irish who made the attack, 545 were killed, wounded, or missing. The 69th was from New York City. It is known as “The Fighting 69th” a name said to have been given by Robert E. Lee.

This famous Irish encounter is well documented in numerous books, paintings, and in the acclaimed Civil War movie “Gods and Generals”.

The 24th Georgia “Irish Regiment” was comprised of ten companies: Co A “Independent Volunteers” from Banks County.
Co B from Hart County
Co C from White County
Co D “Hiawassee Volunteers” from Towns County
Co E “Rabun Gap Riflemen” from Rabun County
Co F “Gwinnett Independent Blues” from Gwinnett County
Co G from Hall County
Co H “The Currahee Rangers” from Franklin County
Co I “Glade Guards Volunteer Rifles” from Hall County
Co K “McMillan Guards” from Habersham County

There were 382 Georgia Confederate soldiers confined and died in the Elmira Prison. These men are buried in the Woodlawn National Cemetery in Elmira, New York. Of these 382 Georgia men, 23 were in the 24th Georgia Irish Regiment.

Note: Co H “Currahee Rangers” were from Franklin County. The name “Currahee” became famous as the cheer / war cry of Easy Company, 506th Parachute Regiment, 101st Airborne Division. The history of Easy Company is documented in the movie “Band of Brothers”, Currahee Mountain is located on the training base of the 506th outside the town of Toccoa, Georgia.

I am on the Board of Directors of Friends of Elmira Civil War Prison Camp. We are trying to raise about $25,000 more out of a fund raising program of $100,000 to complete restoration of an original prison camp building to be used as a learning center for the Elmira Prison Camp, and a memorial to the men who were there and died in the Prison. Restoration of the building will begin this summer.

All of the headstones you see in the photos [See Page 14], with the exception of a few that have been replaced, are made from Georgia marble from the Blue Ridge Marble Company of Nelson, Georgia.

There are 382 Georgia men buried at Elmira.

Any assistance from members and/or the Georgia Division would be most appreciated.

IN THEIR OWN WORDS:

Eccles. 1:9, “The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.”

God’s Word teaches that there is nothing new under the sun. The ideas and systems discussed here are as old as the fall of Adam, as old as the struggle between good and evil.

Our Founders bequeathed us a republic with warnings and admonitions to be good stewards of it. That Republic was executed in 1861 and buried in 1865. In early 1861 newly elected President Abraham Lincoln said to his secretary of the treasury, Salmon Chase, “At the risk of saving the Union I have destroyed the Republic. The South which I loathe is in front of me and the bankers which I hate are behind me.”

It is from that point we began our long downward slide into tyranny. Understand that you are the enforcer of your own ignorance as the information is available to all.

Karl Marx (1818 – 1883), co-author of the Communist Manifesto (1848) has given us three telling statements:
1. “Religion is the opium of the masses.”
2. “Democracy is the road to socialism.”
3. “The theory of Communism may be summed up in one sentence; Abolish all private property.”

Vladimir Lenin (1870 – 1924) was the principal agent of the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917. He began the merciless starvation, slaughter and imprisonment of the Russian, Ukrainian and Cossack middle class causing death to 60 million innocents for the glory of his cause. He boldly sheds additional light upon our present miseries:
1. “It is true that liberty is precious – so precious that it must be rationed.”
2. “A lie told often becomes truth.”
3. “The way to crush the bourgeoisie (middle class) is to grind them between the millstones of taxation and inflation.”
4. “Give us your child for 8 years and he will be a Bolshevik forever.”

May 9, 1953, President of the Ford Foundation 1953-56, Chairman of the Ford Foundation 1956-58, stated:

“National sovereignty is no longer a viable concept.”

Strobe Talbot, TIME columnist, U.S. Deputy Secretary of State, Rhodes Scholar and one time roommate with Bill Clinton said in his 1-20-1992 Time article:

“Nationalhood as we know it will be obsolete, all states will recognize a single, global authority.”

Rowan Gaither, Chairman of the Rand Corp. 1948-59, President of the Ford Foundation 1953-56, Chairman of the Ford Foundation 1956-58, stated:

CONFEDERATE HISTORY MONTH CELEBRATIONS

The Gen John B. Gordon Memorial Camp #1449, of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, held memorial services at The Rock, Ga. and at Glenwood Cemetery in Thomaston, Ga. Sat. 23rd and Tues. 26th respectively. We also placed wreaths at the monuments on the square in Thomaston.

The service at The Rock was to honor the twelve Unknown soldiers buried there. These were soldiers of the “Georgia State Line” that was organized on Feb. 21, 1863 at Camp McDonald at Big Shanty. They were formed as a result of Andrews Raid; historically known as “the Great Locomotive Chase”. Unlike the militia and the reserves, State Line troops were a full time unit (drawing full time pay). They were under the direct command of Gov. Joe Brown.

They were charged with guarding the Western Atlantic Railroad. When the Union invaded Georgia in 1864 the State Line Troops fought at Kennesaw Mountain, Kolb’s Farm, Peachtree Creek, Atlanta, Utley Creek, Jonesboro, Griswoldville, Columbus, and many smaller skirmishes.

Near where the cemetery at The Rock is located was the State Line hospital where Dr. Aaron Pleasant Brown was the surgeon in charge. The soldiers buried here died in the hospital from wounds and illnesses contrived on the battlefields. Dr. Brown was the brother of Gov. Joe Brown. Dr. Brown holds the distinct honor of surrendering the last Confederate ground troops in the entire “War Between the States”.

Thomas Jefferson Finn is the only known soldier buried here; although which of the twelve plots belonging to him is undetermined. Jefferson was born in Hall County, Ga. He was serving in the trenches during the siege of Atlanta when he contracted Pneumonia and was transported here where he passed away on Sept. 1, 1864. He had three brothers and his father that served in the Confederacy as well. Jefferson along with his father and two of his brothers died while in the service.

The memorial service held at Glenwood Cemetery in Thomaston was in honor of 54 soldiers that died in area hospitals during the “War Between the States”. Hospitals located here were the Newsom, the Frank Ramsey, and other temporary hospitals. Only six of these are marked as “Unknown”.

Camp Commander Al Medcalf presented the speech at The Rock, with Camp founder and past Camp Commander Jack Grubb. Mark Dix past Lt. Commander of camp #1449 presented at Glenwood. A gathering of around 30 people of members and non-members alike joined in the services with placing of Confederate flags on each grave during the reading of the “Roll of Honor”.

The Sons of Confederate Veterans is a Civic organization with over 40,000 nationwide members that peacefully honors our ancestors who fought and died during the “War Between the States”. We honor these brave soldiers of all races who took up the cause and made it their own. We denounce those who would carry the Confederate battle flag as a symbol of hate and abhor the fact that so many use it as a tool to stir dishonor and bigotry. Respectfully submitted by Joshua L. Thayer, member of Camp #1449

Rabun Gap Riflemen 1929

Rabun Gap Riflemen, Camp 1929, erected a 20’ flag pole at the UDC Confederate Memorial Plaque located on the War Memorial portion of the Rabun County courthouse grounds on Savanna Street in Clayton, Georgia. On that pole, we fly a 3’ x 5’ Bonnie Blue, 1st National, Battle Flag, 2nd National and 3rd National Flag’s on a rotational basis. The rotation is such that the Battle Flag always flies during Confederate History & Heritage Month in April. When the Battle Flag replaces the 1st National Flag in April, a wreath is also placed at the UDC Confederate Memorial Plaque.

The Rabun County Commissioners unanimously approved our Confederate Flag display at the UDC War Memorial several years ago and last year, when a misguided local individual challenged the Confederate Flag display, on the grounds that someone visiting the Rabun County courthouse “might be offended by such a sight”, the County Commissioners reaffirmed their approval of our Confederate Flag display at the Courthouse.

The Rabun Gap Riflemen, Camp 1929 of the Georgia Division’s 2nd Brigade, is a small but very active Camp in the far Northeast corner of Georgia. We are extremely proud of our Confederate Heritage and our Confederate Flag display. Respectfully, J.P. McVicker Lieutenant Commander

Haralson Invincibles Camp 673

Camp 673 enjoyed an extremely busy April and May this year. Having reached our all time high in membership, we had a lot more troops to attend the various events we participated in and attended. First was the 15th Annual National Confederate Memorial Day Service at Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial Park on April 2nd. Ten members of our Camp were present at the ceremonies, helping to make the turnout the largest showing to date. Our members arrived early and stayed until the Laser Show was over. We spent all day educating the tourists and visitors about all kinds of Confederate history.

On April 5th Compatriots Ben and Jacob Snow, Commander Bearden, and Belle Susan Forrister received our Annual Confederate Heritage and History Month Proclamation from Haralson County Commission Chairman Allen Poole.

During April our members placed flags on Confederate graves throughout Haralson County. At one plot, our 2nd Lt Commander Nathan Forrister returned alone and cleaned off the entire grave site. It is on a hill a mile back up an old logging road. The site is that of Private Andrew J. Estes, Company K of the 13th Ga Infantry.

We had 1/3 of our members participate in the annual Tallapoosa Dogwood Festival. Our tent and Cannon was set up on the main intersection, and we had a very successful day educating the public with discussions, and sharing literature. Many of us marched in uniform in the parade, pulling the cannon and Compatriot David Gass was even shooting a musket much to the crowd’s delight. Also had a banner day selling merchandise and raising funds for our Haralson County Confederate Monument Project.

Camp 673 set up again for the 42nd Annual Buchanan Fair on the Square and Parade. Associate Member Jerry Segal invited Commander Bearden to sit at the WGMI 1440 AM radio broadcast table and promote the SCV, discuss various recent Heritage attacks and some local history.

Next two Camp 673 meetings will be July 6th and August 3rd at Wright Way BBQ in Bremen starting at 6:30pm. Y’all come visit us! Looking forward to a busy summer!

8th BRIGADE REPORT .............

This time of year, Confederate History and Heritage is on the minds of all of us. Numerous Camps in the 8th Brigade did their part to display to the public our love and respect for our Confederate ancestors' heroic stand against an out of control and despotic centralized government.

John K. McNeill, Camp-674 in Moultrie, with Commander Pete Cowhart, once again supported the Moultrie McNeill, Chapter-661 United Daughters of the Confederacy with their 113th Confederate Memorial Day Service. Members of Camp 674, along with compatriots from surrounding camps gave a voluminous firing salute to honor those who fell in defense of the South. Compatriot Ray Houston played a very fine rendition of Taps.

John K. McNeill, Camp-674 meets the second Monday of each month (except December) at the Museum of Colquitt County History. The meetings start at 7:30 PM, and refreshments are served. For further information contact Commander Pete Cowart at (229) 834-1554.

Yancy Independents, Camp-693 in Sylvester, with Commander Bo Slack, held a very fine Confederate Memorial Day Service at the Worth County Court House. The vocal group, "Joyful Sounds", gave beautiful renditions of both Confederate period and gospel music to entertain the crowd. Members of Camp 693, Compatriots from surrounding Camps and other Confederate historical organizations provided rifle and cannon fire salutes. Once again, Compatriot Ray Houston gave a very fine rendition of Taps.

The Yancy Independents, Camp-693 meets on the third Tuesday of each month on the bottom floor of the Sylvester/Worth County Library. Meeting time is 7:30 PM, refreshments are served, and everyone is welcome. For further information, contact Commander Bo Slack at (229) 343-2345.

Jefferson Davis Cowboys, Camp-682 in Irwinville, with Commander Hershell Smith, in conjunction with UDC Chapter-1137 held a Confederate Memorial Day Service at the Evergreen Cemetery near Fitzgerald on April 24th. They also held their annual fund raiser golf tournament at Ocilla.

Jefferson Davis Cowboys, Camp-682 meets the 2nd Tuesday of each month at the Jefferson Davis Memorial Park. The meeting time is 7:00 PM, and refreshments are served. For further information, contact Commander Hershell Smith at (229) 425-2966.

W.D. Mitchell, Camp-163 in Thomasville, with Commander Jason Harpe, meets at Commander Harpe's home on an as needed basis.

Berrien County Minutemen, Camp-1789 in Nashville, with Commander Don Futch, meets on an as needed basis at the Masonic Lodge in Nashville.

Wiregrass Greys, Camp-1683 in Adel, with Commander Barry Resta, meet on an as needed basis.

The States Rights Guard, Camp-1551 in Rochelle, with Commander Raleigh Gibbs, meets on an as needed basis.

Respectfully Submitted,
Charlie Parks, Commander 8th Brigade
